Week 14 of session full of floor debate and budget discussions

Legislators spent much of this week in floor debate and in meetings negotiating budget bills for fiscal year 2022. All individual budget bills have been introduced and much of the work for the remaining part of session will focus on these bills. The Iowa Hospital Association will follow closely any developments that may occur.

The Health and Human Services budget bill, which contains funding for Iowa's Medicaid program and health care policy, has been released by the Senate. Senate Study Bill 1267 was introduced yesterday in the Senate and will become the vehicle for future budget discussions. Although the Iowa Hospital Association is still analyzing this bill, a general overview is included in this edition of the Legislative Bulletin.

Please stay tuned to this publication for updates about budget negotiations.

HHS budget bill introduced

The last budget bill for fiscal year 2022, the Health and Human Services Appropriations bill, was introduced Thursday and expected to be reviewed by a subcommittee and committee in the Senate Tuesday. This year's bill funds the various health care programs at a status quo level. Some notable provisions in the bill include:

- The continuation of the cost-adjustment factor for critical access hospitals.
- An extension of the sunset for the Hospital Health Care Access Assessment Program to 2023.
- Additional public assistance application oversight criteria.

- The establishment of a pharmacy dispensing fee in the Medicaid program.

The Iowa Hospital Association will continue to analyze the bill and provide more information as developments occur.

Telehealth hangs by a thread

As budget bills are being introduced, we know the end of the 2021 legislative session is near. Unfortunately, telehealth payment parity for behavioral health services still has not passed. Although this issue sailed through the House nearly unanimously on a bipartisan vote, it is not advancing in the Senate. The House kept the issue alive by adding the language in House File 294 to Senate File 524, which concerns inpatient bed tracking. Although telehealth is not advancing in Iowa, legislation promoting services provided through telehealth in other states such as Minnesota and Nebraska is advancing. Iowa hospitals cannot afford to lose patients to bordering states because of lack of action. The Iowa Hospital Association needs advocates to reach out to their Senators to keep this issue moving forward.

A VoterVoice Action Alert has been issued to urge the Senate to support this measure. Advocates who live in Senate districts bordering the state can click here to take action. ## Negotiations about EMS are ongoing

As reported in last week's Legislative Bulletin, legislators continue to work on updating and easing the process for counties and city emergency medical service districts to declare EMS an essential service. The Iowa Hospital Association understands a new bill likely will be released and assigned directly to the Ways and Means Committees in both chambers.

Additionally, the Iowa Hospital Association has received reports from legislators in both chambers that negotiations are continuing, and there is optimism to still pass a bill on this issue. This is encouraging as any legislation introduced at this point in the legislative session will need bipartisan and bicameral support. The Iowa Hospital Association remains committed to stressing the importance of this issue and will provide updates as they develop.
